SHERIDAN HOUSE Honoring Christ by Serving the Needs of Children and Families

Through your support, Sheridan House continues to open doors for young men to explore new interests & possibilities.

Our learning experiences extend far beyond the classroom, giving our boys hands-on opportunities to explore the world around them while building confidence, curiosity, and life skills. Through field trips and community outings, students are exposed to environments many have never experienced before, opening doors to new interests and possibilities. These experiences reinforce academic learning while helping students connect lessons to real-life applications in meaningful and memorable ways.

One powerful example is our educational visit to the local library. For many of our boys, this was their very first time stepping into a library. During this outing, they learned how to search for books by topic, identify authors, understand how books are organized, and independently choose reading material that sparked their interest. This experience not only strengthened literacy skills but also empowered students with a sense of ownership over their learning, showing them that knowledge is accessible and meant for them.

We also prioritize exposure to future career pathways through interactive experiences with professionals and service members.

We also prioritize exposure to future career pathways through interactive experiences with professionals and service members. Visits and presentations from the Coast Guard, military branches, and the Air Force allowed students to learn about service, discipline, teamwork, and the wide range of career options available to them. In addition, volunteer outings such as Flamingo Gardens taught responsibility, environmental awareness, and the importance of giving back, helping students understand their role within the larger community.

Looking ahead, we are excited to expand these learning opportunities even further. Upcoming educational field trips include visits to McFatter Technical Institute, where students will be introduced to technology-focused programs and hands-on technical training, and the Culinary Institute, where they will learn foundational cooking skills, nutrition, and food safety. These experiences are designed to spark interest in technology, trades, and career-based education, equipping students with practical skills and exposing them to pathways that can shape their future success.
