Authentic Integrity

The Sheridan House Boys residential program runs all year long, but when summer hits, something extra special happens.

The boys who truly step up and excel in the summer program are rewarded with an incredible camping trip to North Carolina. For some of these young men, it is a journey of a lifetime—literally. A few of them have never even left the state of Florida, so getting to see God's breathtaking creation in the Smoky Mountains is a completely overwhelming experience for them.

To get ready, the boys spent all summer practicing how to pitch tents, cook their own meals, and master essential survival skills. It wasn't just camp prep, though; it was a hands-on lesson in responsibility, quick problem-solving, and real teamwork.

This summer, our theme was A.I.—Authentic Integrity—centered around Proverbs 20:7: "The righteous who walks in his integrity—blessed are his children after him" (ESV). All summer long, we challenged the boys to really take this verse to heart. We talked about how vital it is to live an honest, upright life where your everyday actions actually match your moral and spiritual values. We wanted them to see that making good choices and building a faithful character today creates a positive legacy that will bless their future families down the road.

The absolute highlight of the trip happened when we visited Sliding Rock. If you've ever been there, you know it can be incredibly intimidating, and that mountain water is absolutely freezing! Our boys were having a blast when they noticed another kid—not part of our group—who was completely paralyzed by fear at the top. He must have tried to go down a dozen times, only to turn back around at the last second.

Instead of just ignoring him, the Sheridan House boys stepped right in. They spent several minutes cheering him on, talking with him, and laughing with him until he finally found the courage to take the plunge. It was such a beautiful gesture from our boys—and a perfect, real-life picture of Proverbs 20:7 in action.
